Despite strong protests from one alderman, city coun-cil Thursday approved a 9.83 per cent salary increase for 40 department heads, professional assistants and non-union secretarial staff.

Still Hanging in There

The interest of British Columbians in the Manitoba general election centres chiefly around the inferences which may be drawn from Premier Schreyer's success and their possible application to Premier Barrett's future chances.

After four years of Manitoba's first socialist government Mr. Schreyer appears to have increased to 31 the 29 seats he held at dissolution. Unless recounts in some constituencies change the picture, he has raised his majority in the 57-seat legislature from a one-member margin to five. He also slightly increased his percentage of the total vote, indicating that some votes were drawn from the other parties. The showing is hardly spectacular, but it is a solid one. On the basis of the Manitoba experience - if an even comparison may be made - Mr. Barrett has nothing to fear in British Columbia. With 38 of the Legislature's 55 seats he can even afford to lose a few.

What is significant in the Manitoba results is that the attempt to rally a unified opposition to the NDP proved abortive. Only six of the 18 candidates sponsored by Manitoba's Group for Good Government were elected and five of these had previously been Conservative or Liberal party members of the Legislature. The chief success of the opposition came in St. Boniface where no Conservative ran, leaving the field to a Liberal who defeated NDP Cultural Affairs Minister Desiardins. In St. James a Conservative, supported by the GGG, won in a three-way fight, defeating the NDP Attorney General.

It is surprising that a movement to amalgamate the opposition in order to defeat the socialists could attract even a corporal's guard in British Columbia. Anyonesupporting such an effort must be blind to the fate of the old-line parties over the past 20 years, for although the old CCF Party was kept from becoming the government, the amalgamated Liberals and Conservatives were for all practical purposes eliminated by the Social Credit group. Only in the last year or two have the Liberals and Conservatives begun to reassert their identity. Suggestions to amalgamate opposition parties - such as Conservative Leader Warren proposes — are counsels of despair. Liberal Leader Anderson takes a realistic view when he says, in the wake of the Manitoba results, that "Barrett is in power until some party can win votes away from him."

Premier Schreyer, too, takes a realistically modest view when he comments somewhat wistfully that Wednesday's results constitute "in effect, a vote of confidence." His record of compulsory government auto insurance, low-rental housing program, amalgamation of Winnipeg and its suburbs, and abolition of the medicare premium, appears to have lost no votes even if it gained few. And his promises of government fire insurance, a government-supported mineral refinery, and a start on a dental care scheme, were sufficiently interesting to hold adequate support.

Mr. Barrett's political future will likewise rest in part on his record. But an important - perhaps decisive factor - will be the existence or lack of an opposition party strong enough to challenge him successfully. And that element has vet to emerge.

". . . incredible what these acupuncturists can do with a really advanced case . . .. "

Still a Free Vote, But only last week was confident of clear passage for the bill on capital punishment, has chosen instead to steer a more difficult course through dangerous

There is no doubt that Warren Allmand, the solicitor-general, with some help from the prime minister, has angered many members who would have supported the measure in the form presented on second reading. The changes proposed last Thursday took members, including Liberals, so completely by surprise that there has been a tendency both in Parliament and the newspapers to attribute complicated motives to Mr.

What has happened, however, is open to a much simpler interpretation. The minister has always been a convinced abolitionist; he was probably so encouraged by the strong affirmative vote on second reading that he was over-optimistic in seeking to read the meaning of the debate. As solicitor-general, he has usually been cautious; indeed, as successor to the ill-starred Jean-Pierre Goyer, he had good reason for prudence in his exposed position. Thus he must have been very confident of his analysis to take the initiative of last week without pre-consultation with the Liberal caucus developed that Mr. Alimand had ruefully recognized his error and would withdraw the amendments looking to complete abolition. On Tuesday, the minister denied that there was any retreat. In fact, retreat would then have been difficult because the prime minister on Friday had commented on the character of the bill in a fashion most unlikely to appease the opposition.

No Appeasement Over the weekend very strong rumors

A Coolness

What Mr. Allmand may have overlooked was the fact that many members voted for the Bill on second reading without great enthusiasm and only because it was a compromise. The debate was long as debates on capital punishment often are because individual members, conscious that the issue was being much discussed in the constituencies, were more than usually anxious to justify their votes. For many supporters of the measure, the decision was difficult because there was a general feeling that retentionist sentiment in country has strengthened notably in the

The immediate point at issue was raised on Tuesday by Eldon Wolliams. In his contention; Parliament on second reading had voted for the principle of partial abolition. Minor amendments are always possible but they must not conflict with the principle affirmed.

as an amendment, the principle of total abelition. Mr. Speaker Lamoureux ruled that the question was premature, as the Bill, is still before the committee; he recognized, however, that it was an important point which would have to be resolved at the proper time.

A few Conservatives are as passionately abolitionist as Mr. Allmand and will have to support the revised Bill. But others certainly were reluctant supporters of the compromise; will vote against the measure as amended and thus "increase the pressure on a number of unhappy Liberals to line up with the cabinet. At the least the sense of grievance now in evidence practically guarantees long debate; virtually a new debate; although the Government no longer has any interest in tactical delays and every reason for pressing ahead with much legislation still awaiting the approval of Parliament before the House adjourns for its summer recess.

In theory, yes. In fact, party discipline normally imposes very important restraints. To equate the measure in this fashion with other government measures is to deny the concept of a free vote on these moral issues, as it has been generally understood. When the act which recently expired was before the House in Mr. Pearson's time, some ministers effectively exercised their freedom by voting against it.

Can of Worms Geography, 75 years of history, changing economic processes and technology

have combined to produce a freight rates structure resembling, to rewrite a Churchill metaphor, a dog's breakfast hidden in a can of worms. Regardless of that; however, the people of the prairies hold as an article of holy faith that it was designed to give them the worst of it. They have been railing against it for 50

It is a problem, on the other hand, that Ontario and Quebec have never heard about and about which they could hardly care less. And for good reason. They are happily ensconced in the best of all possible transportation worlds. They have publicly built waterways that provide the railways with competition. They have highway networks that put trucking enterprises into competition with both. On the prairies there is no water competition and there is no secondary industry to provide high volume traffic in high value freight which is essential to massive trucking operations. And that is the alpha and omega of the prairie complaint - lack of job-giving secondary industry which is blamed on discriminatory freight rates.

In a sense the July confab pinpoints the striking evolution of prairie attitudes and concerns from agriculture to industrial employment. For more than 50 years, so long as King Wheat ruled the prairie economy, the primary concern was to man the rampart to protect the Crowsnest Pass rates against assault from railway lobbyists.

tablished in 1897-8 to encourage immigration by offering bargain basement rates on the shipment of farm products to markets in eastern Canada and abroad. And to encourage shipment in the raw state. Now it is being recognized, though seldom trumpetted from house-tops, that a side effect of Crowsnest Pass rates is to discourage establishment of food processing plants in

Beyond Understanding

Rape seed, for example, can be shipped under those rates to Montreal for 70 cents per 100 pounds. There it is processed into vegetable oil and cattle feed. If it were processed in Alberta and the oil and feed shipped to Montreal, the made into breakfast food and other cereal products and returned to the west at vastly increased prices. There were once a dozen flour mills in the west. Most of these have been closed long since and milling became concentrated in the east. This, like the development of Ontario live stock feeding, is regarded in the west as a direct result of freight rate subsidies to eastern farmers.

Complaints are by no means confined to agricultural products. Indeed the main thrust is elsewhere. Basic steel rate from Hamilton to Edmonton, and this is a classic example, is $2.11 per 100 pounds. But from Hamilton to Vancouver, 800 miles farther west, the rate is only $1.35 per 100 pounds. Structural steel rates from Hamilton to Calgary are $2.46 per 100 while the rate to Vancouver is $1.64. What applies to steel applies to undreds of other Items.

It is in fact possible to ship steel and many of these other items from Ontario to Vancouver and back to Calgary or Edmonton for less than the charge for shipping them direct. That adds up to about 1,500 miles of waste motion.

If the Calgary or Edmonton consignees gotiate an "agreed rate" with the railways that would be a compomise between the two rates thus obviating the carrying of the product to Vancouver and back. But in the west, even the agreed charges system seems loaded against local manufacturers.

A large Edmonton chemical plant supplied the chemicals essential to the operation of two paper mills. One was at Hilton, Alta., 182 miles away, and the other at Prince George, 288 miles away. Succumbing to threats from the Prince George mill, the CNR gave it an agreed rate that is less than the Hinton mill gets despite the shorter haul.

The low rates from the east to the Pacific Coast were devised to meet foreign competition from water carried goods. The rates generally date from the construction of the Panama Canal, when the railways of the continent were threatened with the loss of their trans-

Spokane Formula

In the United States, the intermediate states raised such protests however that the government adopted a ceiling that became known as the Spokane formula, Under it no railway could charge more for moving goods to Spokane for example than it charged for moving them to Seattle on the coast.

If this formula were adopted for Canada, it would save many millions of dollars annually for prairie residents living west of Regina and Saskatoon. But that it would set off a boom in secondary industry construction is at best highly du-

Economy of scale is still the name of the game in industrial production of any kind. And basic to that game plan is population. Industry goes where the people are because the people make the market. Secondary industry in Ontario and Quebec not only has the bulk of Canada's population within hailing distance of its sales force, it has access to the markets of the world from the wharves at their

They have, that is, if their multi-national parent companies will permit them to sell to those markets. That is a second highly dublous proposition but it raises a pertinent question for the July conferences: Is there much that politicians can do to overwhelm strict economic considerations, given the geography of western Canada, to say nothing of the demography of western Canada?

Rainbow

June 23 was our Annual Open House and for the first time in many years it rained.

In spite of the rain our decision to carry on was justified. There was wonderful support from our members and the public. Many people came, saying they knew we needed them. We did. Goodwill was expressed by everyone.

The steady, light rain added a flair to the gallant efforts of the Greater Victoria Dog Obedience Club's demonstration of obedience training, an even better display than usual.

The feeling at the end of the day was, 'How wonderful everyone is". We felt we just had a say "Thank you" to those who helped to make our Open House so successful.—Patricia Prentice, President of the Women's Auxiliary, B.C. S.P.C.A. Victoria.

Sick

As a native born Canadian I wish to express my embarrassment and disgust with the rude and forny trash placed on exhibition on "Canada A.M." concerning the Queen's visit.

The supposed interview with the Queen's Lady-in-Waiting, was simply sick. Sick because it was insulting and even sicker because someone evidently thought it was funny.

Anyone is entitled to his opinion about the monarchy, but a nation which allows itself the luxury of bad manners is not likely to develop any kind of a worthwhile culture. If Canadians can behave like adults with a measure of pride and or so we may amount to something as a nation. As we hear of famine in India, Bangladesh, and in Africa, where millions are said to be starving, the question is, what are we doing about it?

Actually famine is not too far away from our doorstep. We need only one bad season, which could come anytime, when many more millions would be in dire

Is it not time for us to ration ourselves - not only in food either - and give all we can spare to help our fellow man wherever he is? - E. W. Abraham, 1124 Faithful.

was a debatable charge because the policies were intended to stimulate growth which would produce wages and profits yield-ing even more billions in new taxes. But at least Lewis' attack, and the defence offered by government and business, brought fundamental issues of economic policy to public

Now a much larger and more questionable ripoff may be developing and hardly anyone is paying attention because it is part of an cept as natural law.

The ripoff is simply this: The federal government and the provinces have licensed corporations to exploit natural resources. The corporations have staked out claims to bil other raw resources. They have of course paid royalties and other fees to the govern ments, and after they develop resources and make a profit, they pay corporation tax.

governments have been based on the value of resources at the time of exploration and discovery. Now the value of energy resources is soaring, and as the world becomes shorter of Corporations which have claims to resources sufficient to last 30, 40 or 50 years are sifting on a bonanza. Without lifting a finger or risking a dollar, they can expect the value of their assets to double, triple, even Governments of course already are seek-ing to revise the deals they have made with developers. The Alberta government wants a bigger share of oil and gas revenues.

British Columbia is eyeing the raw material industries within its territories. The fed eral government is talking of a new and better deal with corporations operating in the Northwest Territories.

But in the main the governments are seeking to share in the increased prosperity of the companies. The basic fact remains that the companies are apparently going to make a huge windfall profit out of resources which originally belonged to the Canadian

Similarly, we are so accustomed to respect the rights of private property that few people seriously question the profits which land speculators make in our large cities. There is occasionally a demand for a full 50 There is occasionally a demand for a full 30 per cent capital gains tax on those profits, but even that would leave the developers with a windfall which they have done nothing to earn — an increase in the value of their assets brought about by public policy which develops the cities and creates a demand for land.

the right of companies to any part of the nat-ural increase in the value of the resources they control is Eric Kierans.

Now an economist at McGill University Kierans resigned from the federal cabinet two years ago to argue against tax policies. Once the darling of big business when he led the fight against Finance Minister Walter Gordon's nationalist budget in 1963, Kierans now is something of a villain because he backed the NDP in its attack last year on tax concessions to business, and because he has recommended to the Manitoba government that it should set up a crown company to go

But Kierans is in no way a radical. There is much about him, as he smilingly admits, of the old-fashioned liberal freetrader who opposes special tax concessions because they distort the workings of the law of supply and demand. In his report to the Manitoba government, he cited not New Left nor far left economic theorists, but John Stuart Mill, who economic theorists, but John Stuart Mill, who-wrote in his classic book, Principles of Politi-cal Economy, in 1848:

"The ordinary progress of a society which increases in wealth is at all times tending to augment the incomes of landlords; to give them both a greater amount and a greater proportion of the wealth of the community, independently of any trouble or outlay incurred by themselves. They grow richer, as it were, in their sleep, without working, risking, or economizing. What claim have they, on the general principle of social justice, to this accession of riches? In what way would the have been wronged if society had, from the beginning, reserved the right of taxing the spontaneous increase of rent, to the highest amount required by financial exigen-Kierans applies the argument to the case of resource companies who sit upon reserves which are increasing in value through no effort of theirs. Why should not the public, who once owned the resources, enjoy the windfall profits instead of the corporations?

Why indeed? No doubt the businessman can think of many reasons, as can land speculators and the property owners. The tax lawyers and the accountants can probably produce paits of figures showing that private owners do not do as well as Kierans seems to suggest.

But there is room here for a debate which goes beyond the question of current tax poli-cy to the fundamentals of how we define and share private and public wealth in Canada.

If there is a corporate ripoff, it probably lies in the growing value of privately owned resources rather than in capital cost allowances and regional development grants.

FERVOR FADING FOR MAO'S IDEOLOGY

China's Youth Chafe Against Regime

MOSCOW and his comrades in Peking are finding it difficult to at-tract young Chinese to political activities, according to Soviet observers of the Chi-nese scene. They claim that the scars of the Cultural Revolution, when the young Red Guards were turned loose to reform all aspects of Chinese life and then abandoned by Mao and crushed by Army, have not yet healed.

The Soviet China experts forecast that the Young Com-munist League of China, which has hardly been heard from since 1966, will be re-vived with a new leadership, of a tenth congress of the

What concerns and worries the Russians is that Peking is continuing an intensive pro-gram of inculcating anti-Soviet feelings among young people and insisting upon study programs denouncing "social imperialism", the Chinese name for Soviet Communism. Two long articles in recent issues of Komsomolskaya Pravda, the Soviet youth newspaper, trace the fascinating history of the YCLC in recent years, beginning with the cul-tural revolution in 1966. At the time, the membership of the of the League's press organs was stopped and they have not appeared since. The League organisation in many cities, particularly in Peking, was smashed and most of its Central Committee were forced to undergo Maoist crit-icism. But when the Red Guards had served their purpose, the Chinese leaders once again began to think of reviving the YCLC.

Soviet commentators argue that the greatest deprivation felt by Chinese youth is the lack of educational facilities: Colleges and universities reopened in 1972, but the six-year closure meant that two batches of students have missed their higher education. Soviet observers suggest that perhaps the Chinese leaders want to restrict the number of educated people in order to preserve political stability.

analysts believe that while the Cultural Revolution may be over, its traumatic effects on the minds of the young will last a long time. The slogans

Another problem for the leadership appears to be that the ranks of the young are permeated by those who idea-lized Lin Piao the late defence minister and heir-ap-parent of Mao, who died in was later accused of plotting against Mao. Soviet analysts claim that while efforts are continuing to revive the continuing to revive the YCLC, a simultaneous purge is also being carried out of the so-called followers of Lin Piao. But there are no reliable estimates about how strong the memory of Lin Piao is and what kind of loy-alty it commands.

The Russians are especially paign in China to bring up young people on the ideas of Mao Tsetung. They say that the aim is to turn the young into "obedient oxen of Chairman Mao" and they conclude that the new YCLC, will be a completely obedient tool in the hands of Mao.

Thetis Park Offer...With Strir

Victoria is prepared to dedicate Thetis Lake Park as a park in perpetuity and then turn it over to the Capital Regional District (CRD) parks system — but the offer has strings attached. Under the quid pro quo deal, approved unahimously by city council Thursday, Victoria wants the CRD to prod the provincial government into purchasing key acreage north of the present park, which will assure its ecological protection, then dedicate the land so that the entire park can be wrapped up in one safe package.

The issue of the 1,100-acre park and its future has been in the safe package.

pigeon-holed at city hall for well over a year. Thursday's initiative appears to toss the ball squarely into the regional dis-

The additional land considered necessary to round out and protect the park comprises some 245 acres of privately-owned property which includes a vital part of the park's wa-

Council was reminded by Mayor Peter Pollen that any development on the watershed acreage could place Thetis Lake Park in "grave jeopardy."

Ald: Mike Young said it was obvious whatever happened that Thetis Lake would remain a park, although an element of "political manoeuvring" was involved.

He said the city should indicate its intentions by its willingness to dedicate the park. But the region's response should not be limited just to acquisition and dedication of the fringe area; it should also assume capital and maintenance costs retroactively to when negotiations first began. "We are kidding ourselves if we carry on with the charade that this is some kind of an asset," Young said. If another jurisdiction wanted to assume responsibility for the park, the city should not stand in its way.

But that comment drew a sharp retort from Ald. Tom 'This park is an asset to the tune of $6 to $7 million," he

Pollen jokingly responded that Beacon Hill Park is proba bly worth $10 million "if we divide it up into apartment sites."

Christie tried to move an amendment that the city lease Thetis Lake Park to the CRD for 30 years at a nominal $1 a year, on the understanding it is used only for park purposes. But the mayor ruled the amendment out of order.

Olympics Athletic Potlach

OTTAWA (CP) — New other postal products the baldirect federal help will not be necessary. Rose ripped into the govern-ment's proposal to raise funds for the 1976 Olympic Games at Montreal, saying in the Common sons Thursday the average Canadian will not benefit from this "athletic

Rose's stinging attack started with his declaration that the New Democrats will not support the bill.

It was a departure from earlier statements but he said these had been made before the party had had time to study the implications of the proposals.

Among other opponents of Among other opponents of the bill was Pierre De Bane, Liberal MP from Matane, Que., and parliamentary sec-retary for external affairs. De Sane said Montreal and Que-bec cannot afford to throw away $500 million on a two-week athletic exhibition while social problems plague the city and its people.

De Bane's remarks drew criticism from Claude Wagner (PC-St. Hyacinthe), who ac-cused the Liberal MP of dis-gracing Quebecers by belittling the Games.

The bill, introduced by the government earlier this month, would permit the is-suance of special stamps and coins and authorize a national lottery.

Special $5 and $10 coins would raise an estimated $130 million and the stamps and

Prime Minister Trudeau stated last February the government will not cover the $172-million Games deficit, predicted by a federal study, the way it had to pick up a large deficit after Expo 67.

to introduce several amendments during committee study of the proposed legisla-tion. These would provide for a ceiting on the number of coins that could be minted, ket coins through post offices and for an annual audit of the special Olympics fund to be set up in the federal public

MARKETING SYSTEM

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto, Montreal and Van-couver stock exchanges have agreed to set up a committee to continue study of a possible national marketing system.

Decision to establish the committee was made at a meet ing in Vancouver May 14, the Toronto exchange says in a notice to members. The Investment Dealers' Association will participate as observers.

The Toronto exchange told its members that there is vet "no agreement of the specific makeup of the eventual mar-keting system." It said work is proceeding along these lines: Standards and procedures of the various exchanges will reach effective uniformity within a very brief period;

—Each exchange will continue as a separate body, but as a member of a jointly established trading system;
—A major objective is to establish a market which, through more efficiency and surveillance, "will encourage public participation and increase the liquidity in Canadian securities";

I'M BACK TO OLD SELF

So Says Exuberant Joe Frazier

LONDON (AP) - Joe Frazler was happy at the end of a training session Thursday, saving: "I'm back to my old self again."

The former world heavyweight boxing champion who fights Monday against European titleholder Joe Bugner was in an exuberant mood after a fierce four rounds of sparring followed by a violent tattoo on the punching bag.

"I am doing things I used to do," Frazier said. "I can move in on a man when I want to. I can get away when I want to."

Frazier, who is going into action for the first time since he lost his crown to George Foreman in January, dismissed some British press suggestions that at 29 years he was possibly over the hill. "I can say this is the same old Frazier again."

Meanwhile, the promoters said that with four days still to go before the bout, $625,000 in ticket money has poured in.

Salmon-Fishing Success Gets Better Every Day

Salmon-fishing success appears to be improving, day-by-day, in most Vancouver Island spots.

Best area around Victoria continues to be the stretch of water between Pedder Bay and Otter Point.

Chinooks up to 32 pounds and the odd coho are being landed on the kelp bed side of Pedder although a few have come in from some deep holes off the William Head shore.

Trevor Anderson, the lighthouse keeper at Race Rocks, managed to land a boatload in quick fashion recently while jigging for cod about one-mile west of the light. He came back with a 164-pound halibut — taken on 30-pound test line.

Beechey Head is still the favored spot to land chinooks (up to 40 pounds), echo (up to six pounds) and the odd sookeye. The latter variety of salmon are snatching pink

Late evening, just before dark, is the prime time to land a chinook off Secretary Island or Otter Point. Use a large minnow, 70 to 100 feet of line and about a pound of weight. Oak Bay waters are a little spotty but the odd jackspring chinook and coho is turning up near Trial Island and Discovery Light. Some good catches of ling cod were also reported in the latter area. Smaller chinooks and coho are sparking "tremendous" limit catches between Bamberton and Sheppard Point as well as in Indian Bay.

Cowichan Bay and Separation Point vicinities are producing chinooks and bluebacks. A new Norwegian-made lure, the Stingsilda, which works like a buzz-bomb but can also be trolled, is among the favored lures, Tent, Thetis and Kuper islands are good bets for chinooks.

Although things are still relatively quiet off Nanaimo, a few blues are being landed in the early morning near Five Fingers and Snake Island. "Pretty good" catches of blues are coming in near Sangster Island.

Rainy Bay, in the mouth of the Alberni Inlet, is yielding good catches of jacks while blues and coho are sparking action off Little River and Bates Beach.

Seal Bay is a hot spot for chinooks but that flurry of returns off Comox Bar has died out.

Anyone visiting Campbell River should try for chinooks at Quathiaski Cove, Frenchman's Pool, April Point or Cape Mudge. If coho are desired, try Cape Mudge or Francisco

Trout fishing remains good in most Island lakes and a new summer run of steelhead is reported in the Somass River.

NEW PROVINCIAL REQUIREMENTS FOR MORTGAGE LENDERS EFFECTIVE JULY 1, 1973

If you borrow or loan money on the security of a mortgage on real property you may be effected by certain provisions of the Mortgage Brokers Act and Regulations of British Columbia which come into force and effect on July 1, 1973. For those persons to whom the new provisions apply, the provisions impose substantial obligations on lenders and provide significant new rights and remedies to borrowers.

APPLICATION TO "BONUS MORTGAGES" ONLY.

The new provisions only apply to what are commonly referred to as "bonus mortgages". That is to say, if you are a borrower and you are required by the lender to pay a sum to the lender in addition to principal and interest and reasonable appraisal, survey, and legal fees then you are probably involved in a bonus mortgage. Sometimes bonuses are deducted from the principal sum the borrower receives.

The Act states that the new provisions, the details of which are set out below, apply to every mortgage where, as part of the cost of obtaining the mortgage, there is an amount by way of bonus, commission, discount, finders fee, brokerage fee, or an amount of a similar kind, by whatever name called, required to be paid by, or deducted from the proceeds to, the borrower in addition to interest and reasonable appraisal, survey and legal fees.

DISCLOSURE STATEMENT

In the case of every bonus mortgage transaction entered upon after July 1, 1973, the lender will be required to furnish to the borrower at or before the time he signs the prescribed by regulations, duly completed and signed by the lender. Some of the items required to be included in the disclosure statement are as follows:

- · the principal amount of the mortgage; a list of the items and their dollar amounts
- to be deducted from the proceeds of the mortgage such as bonus or discount to be paid to the borrower, commissions, finders fees, etc.;
  • the "effective" annual rate of interest
- based on the net proceeds of the mortgage. If there is a bonus then the effective rate interest will be larger than the rate of interest shown in the mortgage document; the amount and frequency of installment.
- the date on which the mortgage becomes due and payable and the amount which the borrower will owe at that date;
- whether or not there is a right to renew
- the mortgage on the same terms;
  whether or not the borrower may pay off the mortgage after a certain period of time and, if so, whether or not there will be any penalty for so doing.

RESCISSION RIGHTS WITHIN FORTY-EIGHT HOURS

Where the lender is required to furnish a disclosure statement the borrower may cancel or rescind the mortgage within forty-eight hours after he signs the mortgage or receives the disclosure statement, whichever first

To be effective, Notice of Recission in the form shown on the back of the disclosure statement must be given by delivering or posting by pre-paid mail to both the lender and the appropriate Registrar of Titles (whose address will be shown on the disclosure statement) within forty-eight hours, but Saturdays, Sundays, or holidays are not included in the calculation of time. Notice is effective at the time of mailing.

The borrower who gives notice of rescission is required forthwith to repay to the lender all amounts he has actually received under the mortgage plus the expenses reasonably and necessarily incurred by the lender. In return, the lender is required to furnish a discharge of the mortgage.

OTHER RIGHTS

In addition to the right to rescind within fortyeight hours, a borrower, under a bonus mort-gage, who has been deliberately misled by anything contained in the disclosure state-ment may, within one month after signing the mortgage, take steps to redeem the mortgage property and obtain, from a Judge, an order that the mortgage be discharged upon pay-ment into Court of the full amount actually advanced under the mortgage and interest plus reasonable expenses.

There may be additional remedies available to the borrower under Part IV of the Consumer Protection Act.

TAKE NOTE

Remember these provisions apply to all persons who loan money on "bonus" mortgages and are not necessarily limited to or related to persons who are registered as Mortgage Brokers under the Mortgage Brokers Act.

If these rights and obligations are likely to effect you, keep this notice. Copies of the act and regulations can be obtained at nominal price from the Queen's Printer, Parliament Buildings, Victoria.

Close-to-City Areas To Get Away From It On Holiday Weekend

LOW TIDE BONANZA

This weekend is ideal for beachcombing for anything ranging from Spanish ship wrecks to old bottles.

It's also ideal for clam digging or picking tasty gooseneck barnacles.

The ideal conditions are being created by abnormally low tides which follow extreme high tides - a phenomena which occurs every 19

This means large beach areas normally covered with water will be exposed and baring their secrets.

The low tides will expose the gooseneck barnacles clinging to rocks. Their stocks are six inches long and only found in areas exposed to heavy wave action.

The barnacles, a favorite dish of Indians, are steamed 20 minutes and then skinned. The flesh tastes like lobster.

Clam digging will be excellent but this is only permitted in non-restricted areas. This is limited to only the beaches around Saanich Inlet in the Greater Victoria area.

With the exception of Cooper's Cove in Sooke Basin, clams may also be dug.

Clam digging is banned on all other beaches, including Esquimalt Lagoon, because of

As for the aldermen and mayors who might like to be on next year's regional board, they are reluctant either to admit they didn't know about the change or to declare their ambitions so early.

But is it so early? Civic election day has been changed too. It's on Nov. 17 this year.

They are the representatives of municipalities who serve on the province's regional districts.

Amendments to the Munici-pal Act passed in the spring prought the "direct mandate" philosophy to the election of boards. Not only would representatives from unorganized territories be diboards, as they have pre-viously, but members of the boards who represent municipalities would have to be chosen by the people.

In the past, these municipal regional directors were simply appointed by mayors from the members of municipal councils. (Often the mayor. would appoint himself.)

ler the amendment received little public scrutiny, municipal regional directors still have to be members of municipal coun-cils but they will be elected by the people. This will be ac-complished by a new ballot system in which a candidate seeking election to his municiseeking election to his munici-pal council who, if elected, also wishes to serve on the regional board, will inform the voters of his intention. ### Reid-Meredith's "Spun Air" Wig... To Travel Lightly

The most carefree traveller you've ever had ... "The Spun Air" Wig from Reid-Meredith. There's almost nothing to it . . . the "almost nothing" is in the cap. Full of holes and full of air and so lightweight that when you wear it you can forget it. All the Reid-Meredith's caps are lightweight but "The Spun Air" is carried to the lightest extreme. In a process that's something like dropping stitches in crocheting, but a lot more scientific, the Reid-Meredith people came up with these spun knit bands held together by gossamer threads. (The diagram explains it.) The result is a bantamweight air conditioner, right there on top of your head. Cool breezes can blow through it, but your hair can't show through. NEW HOPE, Pa. (WP) - Even the host had trouble identifying some of his guests because in past years they have always been the big names in fashion. This time most of them were young and unknown, even if many were also rapidly rising fashion lights.

"It's a landmark group when you consider how strong a statement of ... fashion this is," said the host, Robert Green, fashion director of Playboy Magazine and alleged au-

Green annually invites a large group menswear designers to his farm near New Hope. He prepares everything himself. This year, working for a week in advance, he baked, then froze 40 loaves of bread, 30 cakes and 40 mousses and molded salads. In deference to the number of vegetarians among his guests, he made some changes in his traditional menu for Sunday's party. He added several lentil dishes and also filled two donkey carts with raw vegetables and fresh

His guests also influenced what he decided to wear because, as Green put it, "There is nothing as frightening as an aging hippie; yet these kids have a great respect for o clothes." He chose white yoga pants and a loose, embroidered cotton Indian shirt.

In other years the name designers have arrived confidently (wearing jeans, the past two years) in rented limousines. One year a group rented a helicopter and landed in an alfalfa field at the end of the 65-acre estate. But Sunday, Green's 100 or so guests pulled up, crowded into small cars.

Many of the women were in long romantic dresses and big hats and the men were in white pleated-top trousers, flashy Harry Truman shirts or printed t-shirts.

Travelling with them were their "fami-lies" of models, relatives, friends and employees (their peers), always wearing clothes someone in the group had designed.

Joel Mao, who designs for the dress house of Sue Brett, arrived with Pinky Wolman and won special Coty fashion awards last year. Miss Wolman and Miss Beaudry were in long, second-hand dresses accessorized with the jewelry designs of Michael Sklar, another guest. Mao wore an outfit from the last Wolman-Beaudry collection.

Sklar, an Andy Warhol star, turned up with Clovis Ruffin, who learned last week that he is getting a special Coty award. With them was model Bethann (she doesn't use a last name). Before any of them ever reached the party, they pulled into a nearby driveway so that Sklar could complete his costume by slipping into a printed silk wrap-dress over his trousers and donning a straw hat. He didn't want the "dress" to get wrinkled on the long ride from New York, he said.

"We are finally crossing the barriers of what men and women can wear," Sklar insisted, fanning himself extravagantly. "Women can now wear a strict suit and tie, and men soft and flowing things without any

New Merit Badge Stirs Trouble For Girl Scouts

PHILADELPHIA (AP) are being told about sex, birth control and abortion in a pilot program here. Some protesting mothers feel the girls should stick to baking cookies.

The controversy concerns a new merit badge called To Be a Woman. It threatens to split Philadephia'ls girl scout troops. Roman Catholics espe-cially object to the badge, which has not yet been approved nationally.

The program attempts to give older scouts a better understanding of sexual intercourse, pregnancy, menstrua-tion, venereal disease, birth control, rape and abortion.

Parental permission is required to participate in the program. But this doesn't satisfy critics.

Jane Arnold of Suburbar Wyncote says "To me a girl scout means baking cookies for the old ladies on Christmas, watering the plants at the railroad station and taking nature hikes. These ideas portray the right girl scout image to the public." She is

Tory Probes Conflict of Interest

Times Ottawa Bureau OTTAWA - A Maritimes MP has launched an investigation into a possible conflict of interest resulting from federal government appointments given to defeated Alberta Liberal MP Allen Sulatycky.

The Maritimes MP. Robert Coates (PC-Cumberland Colchester North) has placed nine questions on the Commons order paper asking the federal government to admit or deny the appointments and to tell what special qualifications Sulatycky has apart from the fact he is a dedicated Liberal.

Sulatycky, elected to the House in the Trudeau sweep of 1968, was defeated by Conservative Joe Clark, a former journalist with the Calgary Albertan, in Rocky Mountain constituAlberta MPs in Ottawa believe the government is trying to keep Sulatycky's name prominent in the constituency to give him an unfair edge over Clark should he decide to fight the next federal election.

the next tederal election.

The questions ask whether Sulatycky, a lawyer, has been employed or retained in any way whatsoever to work with the Banff Advisory Council and has also been appointed to the board of directors of Panarctic Oils Ltd.

Banff is within Rocky Mountain constituency and which way the votes go in the township will be a major deciding factor in the outcome of another election battle.

The government has already announced the 35-year-old lawyer has been appointed to the board of Panarctic, the government-private industry consortium. The suggested Banff appointment, however, is new to most people although there have been considerable rumors regarding it.

Coates, who likely raised the questions rather than have another Albertan be linked to the probe against another fellow Albertan, wants to know just about eveything concerning the appointments — or an outright denial from the Liber-

Aside from starting dates and financial benefits, he also wants to know what special qualifications Sulatycky had for the position and whether any other fawyers were considered for the jobs.

It appears that Coates questions about the Panarctic appointment — in particular regarding conflict of interest will fall flat because he simply represents the government on

However, it will certainly emphasize in the constituency the question of political patronage and will likely embarrass both Sulatycky and the government.

The government study, tabled in the Commons Thursday night, sees demand on energy resources multiplying because "we expect as a matter of course to have a high degree of personal mobility" — basically, car travel.

Already, Canadians lay out about 25 cents of every spend dollar on equipment to provide heat, light and transport and the fuel to run it. Demand for fuel is expected to quadru-

Thinkers such as international teacher-scholar Ivan Illich

"the ideology of indefinite energy growth" generates new poverty, social injustice and ultimately restricts mobility.

The rich Western countries "might never come to choke in their own waste because they will already be socially disintegrated in an energy coma."

Already, the typical North American male spends more than one-quarter of his waking hours on his car — driving it, sitting in it, parking or searching for it or earning enough to pay for it, maintain and fuel it, he calculates. North America consumes more energy on transport than the total available for all purposes in China and India combined.

It would also increase knowledge of the industry, particularly from a domestic viewpoint, provide jobs, stim-ulate regional development, and play an effective role in relations with foreign-conrelations with foreign-controlled petroleum companies.

As well, it would place a greater accent on the export refined products rather in crude oil, bringing than crude oil, bringing "greater attendant benefits to Canada."

But the primary justifica-tion for an NPC would be "on other than economic grounds" and the large number of objectives involved "would almost certainly ensure that any NCP would be commercially less efficient."

Insane Suspects Luckier

REGINA (CP) - If you are looking for justice from the police and the courts, it's better to be insane than mentally retarded, a legal expert from Toronto suggested Thursday.

The mentally retarded are discriminated against everywhere in the criminal justice system, while the insane generally receive sympathetic and competent treatment, said Colin Campbell of York

For example, a mentally retarded person is often not identified as retarded when arrested.

Even if he was identified, itmight make little difference, since the justice system basically recognized only two categories - the sane and the insane, Campbell told the Canadian Congress of Criminology and Corrections.

When questioned by police, the mentally retarded often become confused, said Campbell, who conducted research for the criminal law reform commission. This confusion was often mistaken for an un-

In a paper presented to the Canadian Congress of Crimi-nology and Corrections, Kelly, a psychologist at the British Columbia Penitentiary in New Westminster, compares the institution of the family with the institution of prisons.

The family's successful job is done through friendship and support, daily exposure to reasonably successful adult models and encouragement through the training facilities of the community, he said.

The institutions with the most success in rehabilitating prisoners are those that are most "thoroughly dissolved into the community.

WHALING LIMIT MAY BACKFIRE

LONDON (CP) — The International Whaling Commission voted a three-year phase-out of the Antarctic hunt for the endangered fin whale but the move may backfire.

Commission chairman Inge Rinda told a news conference Thursday that Japan and the Soviet Union voted against the resolution and, within commission rules, now could lodge an official objection which would release them from all controls.

The resolution, sponsored by the United States, called for reduction of next year's fin whale quota in the Antarctic to 1,450 from 1,950 with the added condition that the hunt end

Rindal said it is unlikely that Russian and Japanese ships now will allow international observers on board as they did for the first time last year.

In addition to the 1,450 permitted in the Antarctic grounds, the harvesting of 450 fin whales from the North Pacific would also be allowed under the resolution.

SUPPLY LABOR .

VANCOUVER (CP) — The plumbers' union is threatening to withhold labor from the $35 million West Coast Transmission Co. pipeline expansion, western union representative Russel St. Eloi said Thursday.

St. Eloi said the union plans to refuse to dispatch welders to protest hiring of non-union labor on the project, which is scheduled to begin soon.

He said West Coast gave one of its sub-contracts to a firm called North American Inspection Services Ltd., which is constructed.

"We are taking a position that we are not going to supply any men until they get authority from the National Energy Board to carry out the project," said St. Eloi.

"Then we are going to take the position that the job has to be 100 per cent union or we are not supplying any men,"

Pollen Pushes Four Beefs To Municipalities Union

Of nine resolutions approved by city council Thursday for submission to the fall convention of the Union of B.C. Mu-nicipalities, four were on themes which have been fre-quently aired by Mayor Peter during the past 18

The topics were: the financial relationship of B.C. Telephone Co. with its affiliate companies; the requirement. for full financial disclosure by monopoly utilities; regulation of the transportation and communications fields by federal bodies; and proposed strengthening of the post of federal auditor-general.

Only council member to speak against any of the four resolutions was Ald Clyde

"That's none of our busi-ss," Savage declared. "I don't think we are in a posi-tion to be asking the provincial government to direct anyone how to run their busi-

Pioneers Took Lilac From Place to Place

Lilac, beloved of the pioneers of Canada, who brought rooted pieces to every homestead as they settled from east to west. Winter frosts and winds, summer droughts and scorching sunshine, the lilac, survived all, yet to enjoy abundant bloom there are things we should know about lilac.

This fragrant spring shrub survives only where soil is deep and hidden riches of nutrients. Often it lives because the deeply-rooted weed growth around crumbling buildings brings to the surface the food supplies from the soil below.

Lilac is a surface rooter. This indicates that farmyard manure and household water were instrumental in getting the plants established. Then nature took over, leaving a legacy of old lilacs across the country.

But what about those in our gardens on the Coast?

One problem is that of a mossy growth on old branches. Usually this can be traced to lack of air circulation, caused by dense plantings nearby or the lilac itself has become crowded.

The remedy is to thin out crossing and tangled branches by removing even one of the oldest at ground level. It will take away a lot of top growth too but the air will now get in. Dryness at the roots for long periods may also contribute to this type of mossy growth on trees. Take a piece of sacking soaked in mild soapy water and scrub gently so as not to break the bark. This may be possible in some cases.

Another problem here is that our natural soils lack humus except in rich valley land. Lilac with its surface roots must have an abundance of humus constantly holding moisture and food within its reach. It does not like acid soil; don't plant near shrubs constantly being mulched with acid compost and peatmoss.

Give lilacs a late spring mulch with old cow manure and general garden compost. Abundant water for the shallow roots is needed during our long dry season—this year from early March to the present time.

A third problem in our city gardens is that of suckering.

More than one old lilac seen in local gardens was originally grafted to green privet, a close relative. The privet grew up to puzzle the owners in later years with its strongly scented little white flowers in June.

Later years saw the practice of grafting named French varieties to the common lilac, with resulting suckers crowding out the fine doubles and well colored varieties.

ing out the fine doubles and well colored varieties.

Today one comes across some lilacs growing on their own roots which means that the shrubs were produced from cuttings or from layerings. Sucker growth will then be the same as the original since if comes from the same set of roots. However, to avoid the inevitable overcrowding of branches, remove sucker shoots by gently working down with the fingers to where it emerges from the rootstock and rubbing or cutting it off. The acutual growth bud needs to be removed, not only the upright stem part.

And never dig or cultivate around lilacs. But remember to water and mulch before dry weather sets in.

From Place to Place Lilac, beloved of the pioneers of Canada, who brought

this fragrant spring shrub survives only where soil is deep and hidden riches of nutrients. Often it lives because the deeply rooted weed growth around crumbling buildings brings to the surface the food supplies from the soil below.

Lilac is a surface rooter. This indicates that farmyard manure and household water were instrumental in getting the plants established. Then nature took over, leaving a legacy of old illacs across the country.

But what about those in our gardens on the Coast? One problem is that of a mossy growth on old branches. Usually this can be traced to lack of air circulation, caused by dense plantings nearby or the lilac itself has become crowded.

The remedy is to thin out crossing and tangled branches by removing even one of the oldest at ground level. It will take away a lot of top growth too but the air will now get in. Dryness at the roots for long periods may also contribute to this type of mossy growth on trees. Take a piece of sacking soaked in mild soapy water and scrub gently so as not to break the bark. This may be possible in some cases.

* * * Another problem here is that our natural soils lack humus except in rich valley land. Lilac with its surface roots must have an abundance of humus constantly holding moisture and food within its reach. It does not like acid soil; don't plant near shrubs constantly being mulched with acid compost and peatmoss.

Give lilacs a late spring mulch with old cow manure and general garden compost. Abundant water for the shallow roots is needed during our long dry season—this year from early March to the present time.

A third problem in our city gardens is that of suckering.

More than one old lilac seen in local gardens was originally grafted to green privet, a close relative. The privet grew up to puzzle the owners in later years with its strongly scented little white flowers in June.

Later years saw the practice of grafting named French varieties to the common lilac, with resulting suckers crowding out the fine doubles and well colored varieties.

Today one comes across some lilacs growing on their own roots which means that the shrubs were produced from cuttings or from layerings. Sucker growth will then be the same as the original since it comes from the same as the original since it comes from the same as the original since it comes from the same set of roots. However, to avoid the inevitable overcrowding of branches, remove sucker shoots by gently working down with the fingers to where it emerges from the professors to the content of t the fingers to where it emerges from the rootstock and rubbing or cutting it off. The acutual growth bud needs to be removed, not only the upright stem part.

And never dig or cultivate around lilacs. But remember to water and mulch before dry weather sets in.

KNIT & CHAT

One woman I know, who is away all summer at the cottage with her children, knits all the mitts for the family. She claims she doesn't have time once school starts again. These mitts are simple to make on two needles, in ribbing and stocking-stitch. Ten styles for all sizes including adults are on Leaflet, No. 6727.

I had the pleasure at dinner of sitting next to Victor Goldboom, Quebec's minister of municipal affaires. He has fond memories of his maternal grandmother who lived in Victoria; B.C. and kept him supplied with handknitted sweaters and mitts.

And don't forget that the children may want to make things too, especially if the weather keeps them indoors. How about making some felt glove puppets? Full instructions are on leaflet No. 6876. For girl's there are three yarn doils to make on leaflet No. 7055. Their bodies and hands are scraps of material stuffed with cotton wool, wool for hair, and their arms and legs braided wool.

There is a felt elephant on leaflet No. 6950, a felt bunny on No. 6951 and a felt fawn on leaflet No. 7057.

How about cutting out a quilt while you are away? You'd be all set to start in on the sewing when you get back home! This week's pattern is an old favourite called basket of flowers.

Complete instructions on how to cut out the pieces for both the single and doulbe bed size, plus the professional way of putting together the patchwork, interlining, and quilting, are all given on the one leaflet.

To order Leaflet No. 7356, or any other leaflet mentioned in the column, send fifty cents for each leaflet, plus a stamped self-addressed return envelope, long one if possible. Send to: May E. MacLean, Knit and Chat, co Victoria Times, 486 Montford Drive, Dollard des Ormeaux, Que.

meaux, Que.
Please be sure to state pattern number when order ing, and to enclose your stamped return envelope. Allow three weeks for delivery. My illustrated catalogue of other designs available is sixty cents, from the same GULF ISLAND PROPERTIES

Waterfront watchers may not have suspected it . . . but the local foghorn has been in a fog for days.

While the watchers may have been able to see across the straits to Port Angeles the foghorn off the Dallas Road breakwater has been issuing its two-second warning the past two days.

And the superintendent of lights can't set the horn straight until the water around Brotchie Ledge calms down, apologizes Bill Exley.

He said it's all because the fog detector unit indicates there's enough moisture in the air to warrant a blast.

Exlev said his staff did attempt to go out and fix it Thursday, but conditions were unforable. (Too much fog?)

Close-to-City Areas To Get Away From It On Holiday Weekend

LOW TIDE BONANZA

This weekend is ideal for beachcombing for anything ranging from Spanish shipwrecks to old buttles.

It's also ideal for clam digging or picking tasty gooseneck barnacles.

The ideal conditions are being created by abnormally low tides which follow extreme high tides - a phenomena which occurs every 19

This means large beach areas normally covered with water will be exposed and baring their secrets.

The low tides will expose the gooseneck barnacles clinging to rocks. Their stocks are six inches long and only found in areas exposed to heavy wave action.

The barnacles, a favorite dish of Indians, are steamed 20 minutes and then skinned. The flesh tastes like lobster.

Clam digging will be excellent but this is only permitted in non-restricted areas. This is limited to only the beaches around Saanich Inlet in the Greater Victoria area.

With the exception of Cooper's Cove in Sooke Basin, clams may also be dug.

Clam digging is banned on all other beaches, including Esquimalt Lagoon, because of pollution.

However, while the low tides may bring pleasure to many people, the high tides bring discomfort to campers who have not heeded warnings to pitch their tents above the beaches.

Thousands of Victorians will be heading for the wide open spaces for the Canada Day weekend.

But is it necessary to drive 150 to 200 miles on a congested highway to find a quiet camping place?

Herb Warren, a former president of the Victoria Outdoor Club, doesn't think so. While he admits public wilderness areas are scarce in the capital region compared to other Island districts, such as Nanaimo, Alberni, Courtenay and Campbell River, he says there are a few places where people can feel they are "away from it all."

The advantage of going to these nearby areas, he said, is you don't need two days to recuperate from driving fatique. Here is his list of some camping areas not too far from Discovery Island off Oak Bay, Sidney Spit on Sidney Island and Princess Margaret Island, all provincial parks, are excellent camping areas for owners of small boats.

Then there are the day-use parks - not for camping, but

While the NDP improved its majority in the legislature and increased its share of the vote by about four per cent, it failed to win the kind of sweeping victory hoped for by the party faithful.

The New Democrats, facing voters for the first time from a position of strength, solidi-fied their hold on the North and picked up one seat from the Conservatives in rural

Germans Boost Value of Mark

Times News Services

BONN - West Germany, caught up in an everrising tide of prosperity, revalued the mark upward by 5.5 per cent today in a move that patched up a European economic crisis at the expense of the already low U.S. dollar.

Europe's money markets first froze into inactivity with the news of the second revaluation this year. When business did resume, the U.S. dollar dropped again to record lows in Frankfurt, Zurich, Mary Ann overheard the remark and buried her head again in her grandfather's sleeve.

Then the crowd about them went wild. People waved flags and yelled, "She's coming, She's coming."

"Who's coming," the timid elderly Mennonite asked. "The Queen's coming," shouted a boy next to him. "Haven't you been watching TV?"

The bewildered old man was a member of an Old

Order Mennonite sect that refuses to own radios or television sets. The crowd surged forward and the man and his grand-daughter were pushed toward the front. The motorcade was directly in front of them.

The little girl gasped. A smiling lady wearing a wide-brimmed hat with a yellow band waved in her direction.

"It's the Queen, Grandpa! I've seen her pictures in school. The Queen smiled at me.'

The crowd hemming them in dispersed and they started across the street. Relieved to be on his way the elderly man added a comment.

"Well, she had a good sensible hat on her head."

SALISBURY (UPI) - Prime Minister Ian Smith today slammed shut the door on a settlement of his country's eightyear-old independence dispute with Britain.

Despite strong protests from one alderman, city coun cil Thursday approved a 9.83 per cent salary increase for 40 department heads, professional assistants and non union secretarial staff. Ald. Tom Christie explained his opposition to the move by terming the increase "exorbi-tant," and saying people would be "shocked" if the sa-laries of some senior city hall staff were made public.

He also took the opportunity to lash out at the two se-derally, for "pussyfooting around" with anti-inflation troduce wage and price con-trols; and provincially for adopting a too-generous atti-tude toward the subject of civil servants' salaries,

Christie said only that day the provincial government had created a new senior category for "associate deputy ministers" with salaries to match the title.

The salaries of senior personnel are starting to run wild," Christie said. "But just because the senior govern-ments are setting the pace don't see why we have to fol-low suit."

He told council he could find no "economic indicators" justify a salary increase city hall staff "of this magnitude." Inevitably, council would be faced with the same situation of unwarranted escalation next year, he

Council's finance and personnel committee last week endorsed the proposed in-crease without debate. The recommendation had been framed earlier by council's committee of the whole.

The increase, effective April

1, 1973, will cost the city an estimated $57,000 this year. Christie found some support from Ald. Sam Bawlf, who said this was largely an in-stance involving "discre-tionary income" and could not be compared to the situation of lower-paid workers who were trying to keep pace with the spiralling costs of basic necessities.

Ald. Mike Young, however, said council should face the economic facts of life. Approval of the increase did not imply bland approval of inflation, but would merely be alternative of the alt "recognition of the circumstances as they presently exist," he said.

Young said the increase was an attempt to ensure that
